Ordering and Grouping:

1. Why do you think the search bar is located on the top part?

-The search bar is located at the top part so that it will be highlighted as an important functionality of slack to search for conversations etc.

2. Why do the threads, mentions & reactions, and saved items group together on the upper part of the left navigation?

-Threads, mentions and reactions etc. were grouped together because those are additional functionalities that needs to be noticed immediately with a quick glance.

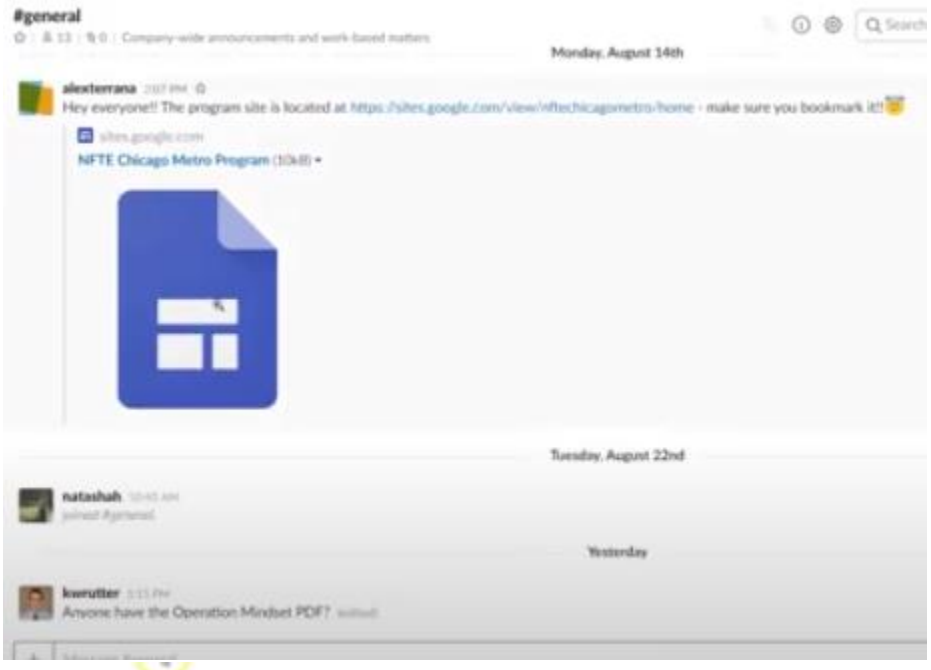
3. Why starred groups and channels are highly prioritized before direct messages?

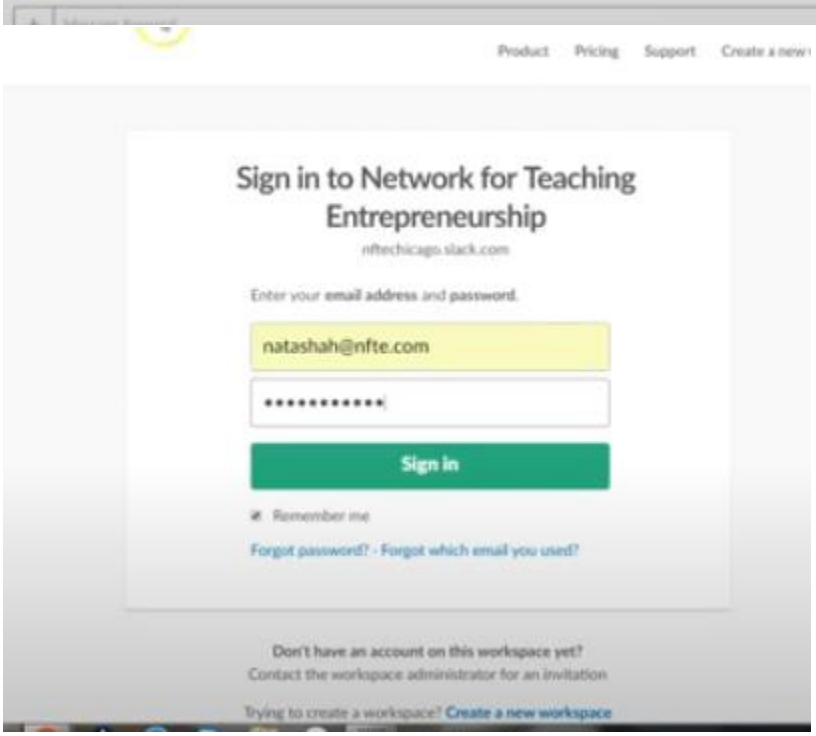
-The nature of slack is to communicate with the team in an organization. The groups and channels are placed intentionally before the direct message so that it can be seen first.

Part 2: Identification:

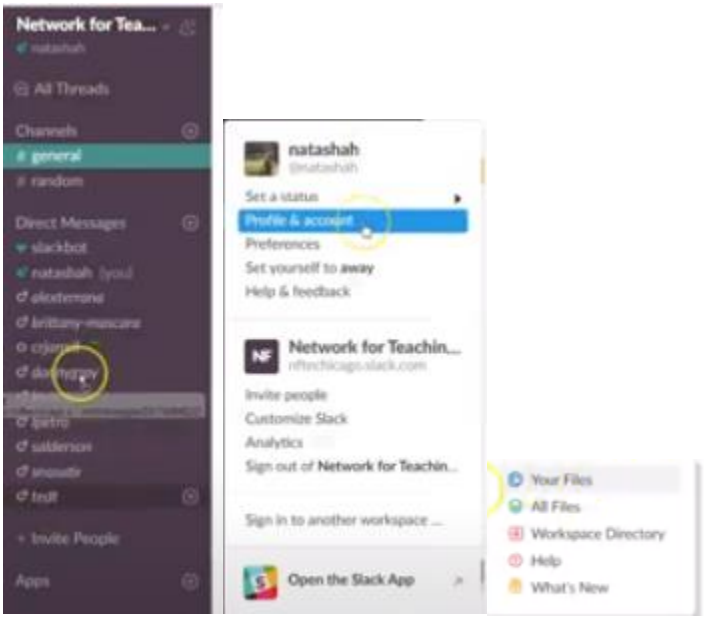
- Continuity

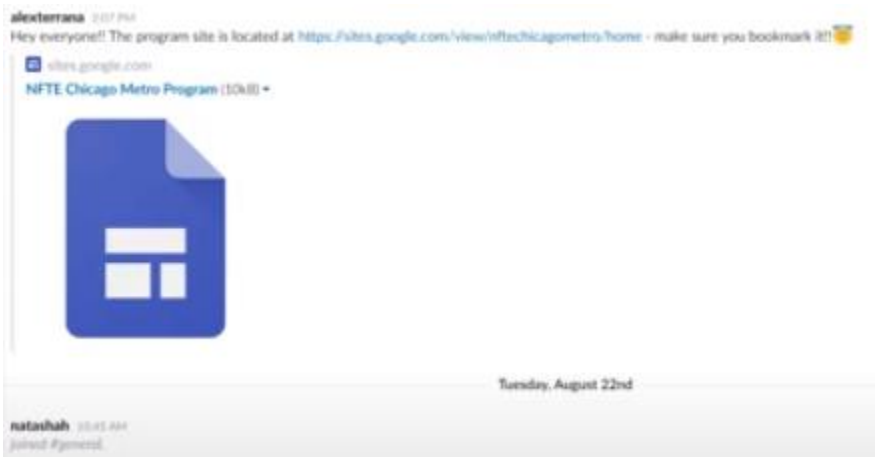
-Single-column Layout





-Categorization





-Proximity