

Make it right:

#1 Mistake: The horizontal layout is very messy. In fact, it avoids us to focus on the course description or the image itself. It is very distracting.

Image:

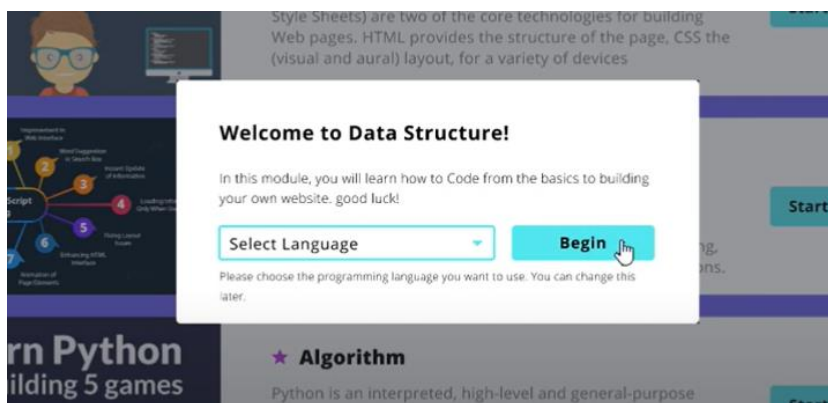

Proposed Solution:

You can use a simple card and putting short description for the course.

#2 Mistake: No proper validation. If the user can proceed without selecting a language, then you did the developer put it in the first place?

Image:

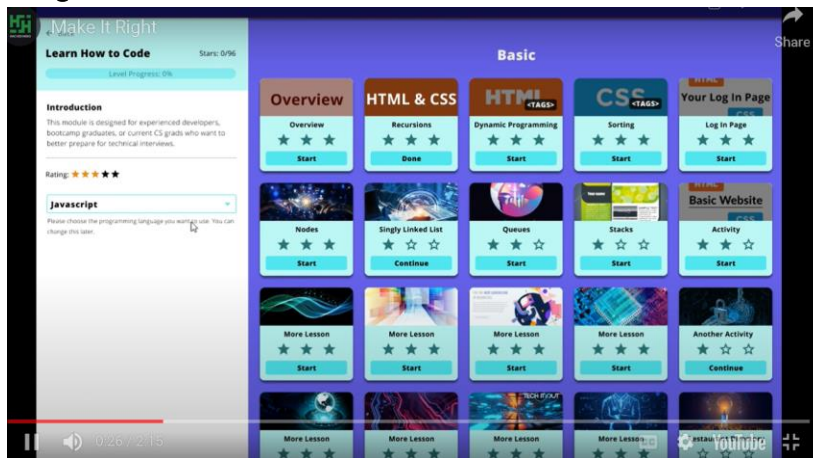

Proposed Solution:

A proper validation can improve the experience.

#3 Mistake: The cards have an ugly design and you can't easily navigate on where to start the course.

Image:

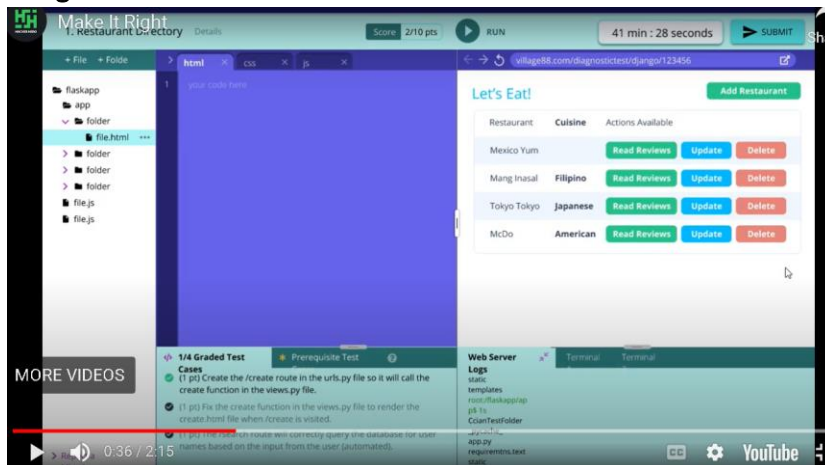

Proposed Solution:

Every course should be organized (in-order) in the sidebar so that the user can easily navigate where to start instead of displaying it all at once mixing the advanced and beginner courses.

#4 Mistake: No proper whitespace and color consistency and the layout is very bad.

Image:

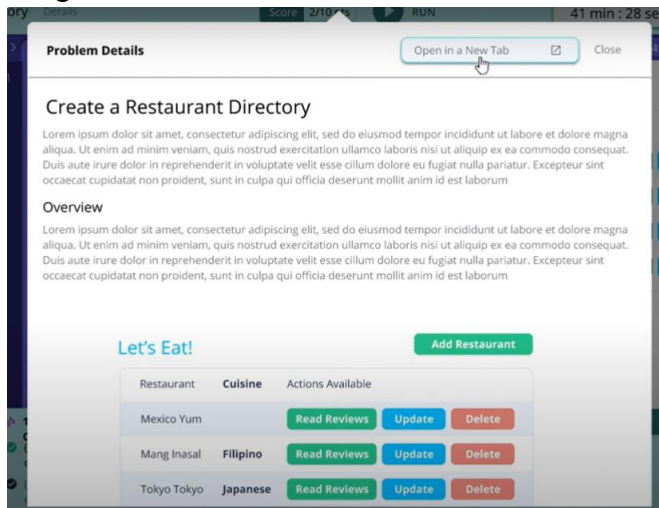

Proposed Solution:

It would be better if the layout can be improved and make it more visually appealing and also use a proper color for consistency to make it simple.

#5 Mistake: Proper spacing of the text, the font size and the modal design.

Image:

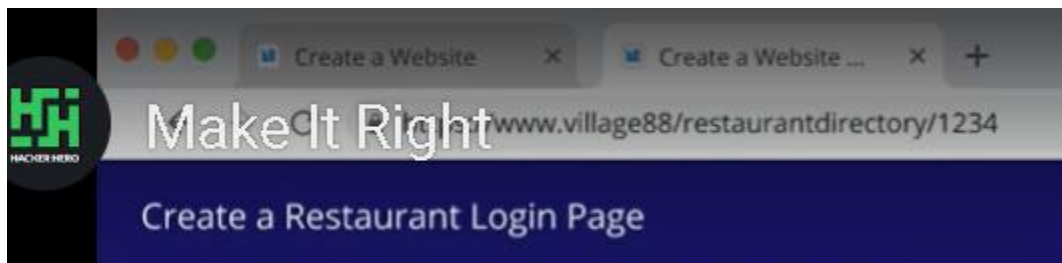

Proposed Solution:

As you can see, the border radius is not consistent. The problem details have a smaller font which also avoids us to determine if it is important or not.

#6 Mistake: The title of the page must also correspond to the name of the page.

Image:

Proposed Solution:

If it is a login page then put a correct title in the html and also the correct name of the path instead of just putting 1234 in the URL.

#7 Mistake: Two timers? Seriously? You should have put timers everywhere to make it a timer page. Just kidding 😄. The username layout also broke. No proper spacing for the texts
Images:

Proposed Solution:

The competencies/instructions should be on top. Do not put timer more the once. Fix the username width so it doesn't break. Properly layout the paragraph and highlight the important information.
